And while it isn't as easy to learn as Photoshop, it's much easier to use than Adobe Photoshop CS6, and with the new features of Adobe Photoshop, it's easier to learn than Photoshop.

There is also a free 30-day trial that will let you try it out. Who should use it? If you use a graphics editor on a daily basis, it's hard to ignore Photoshop. The reason that Photoshop is so dominant over other graphics editors is because it has so many features. While it may be inconvenient to use, the amount of features that it has makes it so useful. Pencil - M.E.M. Two of the most creative, innovative and inspiring people I have ever met. Both Bruce and Monty are my heroes. They are also the 2nd most important people in my life. They are Dr Bruce Beare and his wife, Myra. They have been married for 5 years and have a two year old daughter, Madeleine. Bruce is a father figure to me. He has been my mentor and friend for almost 11 years and has guided me through amazing challenges, transforming the very nature of mine and Maddy's lives. Myra and Bruce are responsible for the design and creation of my beautiful little girl. I am deeply grateful and honoured that they accepted my challenge to be our Pencil Team and to be a Pencil of Maddy. This Month's Goal: We will continue to paint her beautiful face. Bruce has instructed me to start first with her nose and cheeks, then the bridge of her nose, then on to her eyes, then her forehead, then her eyebrows, and finally a final polish on her cheeks. Bruce will be painting and supplying me with a beautiful palette of colours on which to work. From the comments Bruce has given me, I believe he is the best painter that will ever paint a two year old's face! There is no one who can paint like Bruce on Maddy's face. He gives me all of the confidence that I need to feel on top of the canvas when I am painting her beautiful face. Thanks for your support Bruce and Maddy! Comments: I am thinking of you Bruce! Maddy is truly blessed to have you as her Pencil Dad. Bruce and Myra are the only people that you could approach for help in choosing the colours for a painting. Their advice is always first class. They are also friends of mine and you should know that they love to help others. Give them a shout if you need anything. They are really humble, kind, generous and smart. Take care of yourself and your family Bruce. We need you at your very best! We wish you all the best with your Pencil work on your little one. An Australian pediatric oncologist looking for an opportunity to start his own company has scored his dream job: a chance to be named CEO of the world's second-largest biotech firm. After a brief stint as the CEO of a computer consulting firm and an attempt to change careers as a cardiac surgeon, Dr. David McCauley, 34, took the helm at Amgen in 2007 after selling his stake in the company. After 14 years, he has left at a time when the biotech industry has lost some of its stature and lost its way, due to consolidation, pharmaceutical companies moving into biologics, and investors pulling out of the industry. "The industry has changed," says McCauley, who will take the helm at the company on Aug. 1. "We're changing from being a company to being an innovation engine." McCauley, who continues to lead as chief technology officer, says Amgen needs to build a new business model based on "intelligent research and education." He doesn't plan on building massive new factories and is instead more focused on computer modeling and biology. "When people see the power of new science, they have to say, 'Why haven't I thought of that?'" Amgen has five core areas that McCauley will strive to drive innovation and spend most of the company's energy on. The new CEO wants to develop a new class of cancer drugs called bispecific antibodies, an area that McCauley has been working on since his days as CEO. He also wants to accelerate the clinical development of predictive medicine technologies, as well as in vivo imaging agents that would help doctors diagnose and treat disease. This month, the company is launching a new effort to develop new ways to treat autoimmune diseases. McCauley, who says he sees immense potential for Amgen to change the world, says his biggest regret is that he sold his stake in the company. The new CEO is leaving with almost two decades of Amgen under his belt. "I never planned on selling my stake," he says. "When you sell your stake, you sell out and you can never come back." McCauley, who is a pediatric oncologist, attended Harvard Medical School, did his residency at Stanford and has a private practice in Los Angeles. Having spent the past 14 years at Amgen, he says the hours he put in paled in comparison to the hard work he did at his tech
