Your character is a girl, she has a boyfriend, and she looks like her. As a girl who spends a lot of time in the magical world, you obtain magical ability through a cursed object. However, your character's cursed object can only be used in the special room in the mansion. When you enter the special room, you can swap the weapon according to the difficulty. Depending on the difficulty, a different character (or monster) will appear. If you defeat the enemy, you will gain a further scroll (right to left), which increases the strength. If the enemy's health is too low, you can consume the scroll as well. The character can use it anytime (at least 3 times), but the limit is more strict in the higher difficulty. The last scroll can be used for the final battle with the strongest enemy in the final chapter. Note: Although you can change the difficulty, only the first 3 times can be used on the higher difficulty. Also, some items are used at certain times.For example: You start the game with 4 hearts and they disappear over time. If you lose all your time, the number of hearts will drop to 0. The original Unexplored was something I have no recollection of. I don't remember even having the game's installation code on my computer. In contrast, this game is unlike any other I've played. It's a chilling journey through an elaborate Lovecraftian land, and I'll be damned if it didn't make me think quite a few times. This game takes advantage of the ease with which the player can test what items have become corrupted. There are no levels or enemies for the player to fight, and while you can die, it's just a question of how many times you'll hit the ground. This can make exploring the world challenging, and it's the reason you'll eventually want to stick to safe spaces. Your choices in this world make it quite unique; this is a place you never see anything like it again. The world of Unexplored 2 is filled with secrets. With a seemingly empty desertscape of a world, any discovery of a new thing feels like a miracle. The water you find on the surface of the watery abyss is safe, but the reefs around that water have their own dangers. There are various places where items are safe, and some are not, and I would recommend discovering those safe spaces for yourself. The beauty of Unexplored 2 is the freedom with which you can discover the world, and the mystery surrounding your own survival. As a testament to the massive progress the game has made since its original release, the original concepts remain. Some people may read this and feel like they were lied to, but I can't help but be happy that I met those characters when I was younger, and that I got to play a wild version of an adventure game that had so much potential. This is a journey that I'm thankful I can take part in, and I can only imagine what a full release could be. Unexplored 2: The Wayfarer's Legacy is a spectacularly grand achievement, and only the few people who have tried it will truly understand what it's capable of. Night of the living dead Unexplored 2 is a horror game that makes no friends with you. It is a survival game that rewards stealth and careful thought, and it asks you to keep your wits about you. You are now responsible for your own health, as most things in this game must be interacted with and handled with care. Before you move forward, you must look around to see what danger awaits you. The camera cannot see many of Unboxing of Acer Predator XB271HK Camera The Acer Predator XB271HK comes shipped with a pretty good level of quality. You really notice the case even if it's just a 90% case. The stock web camera that is found on the XB271HK is at an acceptable distance from the user. It's to bad they are not using an HD camera just to make things easier and more professional to use.Q: Computing the nth derivative of $z=\tanh\!z$ How does one compute the n-th derivative of $z=\tanh\, z$? I tried a lot of possible approaches but never worked to a close solution. Maybe someone can help me. Thanks in advance. A: Note that $f(z) = \tanh z$, defined on $\mathbb{R}$ is a C^{∞} function, by direct verification. And note that, for any real $z,$ $(z-y)^n f^{(n)}(y) = (z-y)^{n-1}f^{(n)}(y) $ so that $f^{(n)}(z) \sim \frac{1}{2^{n-1}} \Gamma(n)z^{ -(n-1)}$ by differentiating under the integral sign. This gives us, for instance, $f'(z) = \coth z$ Letting $z = \tanh t$ and utilizing the above we have \begin{align} \tanh^{(n)}t =&\ \frac{1}{
